

WANTED

Fall Armyworm | AKA The Ravenous Rebel

Fall Armyworm came to Africa in 2016 and in its larval stage, feeds on maize, rice, and sorghum. The maize crop in sub-Saharan Africa has sustained the most damage.¹

DAMAGE: The insect has caused an estimated $6.2 billion of crop losses² and as a moth, can fly hundreds of miles in one night and lay thousands of eggs in its lifetime.¹

To learn more about how pests like this can be controlled, visit www.croplife.org

CropLife INTERNATIONAL

1. FAO Food Chain Crisis: Fall Armyworm

2. Fall Armyworm: On the March to Britain, the Deadly Pest That Devastated Swathes of Africa